

ACCESSIBLE INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS WORKSHOP DAY

ATTENTION!

“NIMAS Is For ALL Children!”

Don't miss this opportunity to meet one of the nation's foremost authorities in "Accessible Instructional Materials"! This workshop will assist all school districts and charter schools that have students with print disabilities. Educational accessible instructional materials have come of age because of the new National Instructional Materials Accessibility Standard (NIMAS).

DATE: January 8, 2009

TIME: 9:00a.m. – 4:00p.m.

WHERE: Sanderson Community Center
5709 South 1500 West
Salt Lake city, Utah

SPEAKER: Joy Zabala, Project Manager, AIM Consortium, CAST
Joy is a lively, energetic speaker as audiences soon find out. She makes you feel involved from the very beginning. Her expertise in assistive technology and accessible educational instructional materials is well known in the field. She continues to engage audiences across the nation.

TOPIC: “NIMAS Can Make A Difference For ALL Children!”
Joy will discuss why NIMAS is important , and what is going on around the country. She will also discuss the SETT Program, and other strategies that work with students with print disabilities.

WHO: UAAACT Teams, NIMAS/AIM State Advisory Committee, Teachers of the Visually Impaired, Special Education, District Curriculum (Reading), District Instructional Materials, District Technology Departments, USOE, USDB, USIMAC, Administrators, and others who might be stakeholders of information about “print disabilities”.

Lunch will be provided.

Register by email to rebecca.lewis@schools.utah.gov by January 7th
Please leave your: Name, School or organization, and phone number.